SPRINGFIELD, KY., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 5, 1907.

NUMBER 26

A LIST OF THE SUCCESSFUL CONTESTANTS.

Thursday evening the female contest took place. There were five contestants for the junior medal. Lebanon, Bardstown, Springfield, Pleasure

Trigonometry—(1) Marie Edmunds

Mr. Richard Montgomery died at his home in Louisville last Sunday, after a brief illness, due to the infirmities of age. Mr. Montgomery formerly resided in this county, where he was well known, and where he had a host of friends who learned of his death with regret. The deceased was a kind, Christian gentleman, being a member of the Catholic church. The body was brought here and interred in the St. Rose cemetery yesterday afternoon.

To the bride and groom The Sun, together with many friends, extend congratulations.

DIET FOR CHILDREN

How Mothers May Be Helped in Providing Suitable Food.

In a family where there are children the mother is often compelled to cook separately for the young ones. This extra trouble may easily be avoided if in preparing the food for the old folks the following practical suggestions be kept in mind, says the New York American:

Frying should not be chosen as a means of cooking meat for children. When preparing beefsteak have a hot fire, place the steak on the grilliron and hold it close to the fire for a minute, turning it rapidly. The fierce heat coagulates the albumen near the surface, seals the pores of the meat and keeps in the juice. When the outside is seared hold it farther from the fire until it is done. On removing sprinkle it with salt.

Steak should be cut about one inch thick. The top of the round is a juicy and well flavored part of the beef and steak cut from there is less expensive than the sirloin or choicer steaks and more nutritious. This same method of broiling may be applied to other meats.

Poultry is not more desirable for children than beef or lamb, although being more delicate it is sometimes considered so. Either the white or dark meat may be given, the former being preferable. It may be roasted, broiled or trolled.

Fat is essential to the proper growth of the tissues of the nerves and brain and is peculiarly important to children, as the brain enlarges rapidly during childhood. Next to butter and cream, bacon is one of the most palatable forms in which it can be given. It should not be overcooked, as then too much of the fat is fried out. Some times bread soaked in bacon fat will be eaten with relish.

After a child is two years old a vegetable of some kind besides potato may be given at the midday meal. Cabbage and raw cucumber are unsuitable, but any other well cooked vegetable is harmless in small quantities. Stewed celery, peas, beans, tender cauliflower, baked or stewed tomatoes are all useful.

Any fresh, ripe, seasonable fruit may be given every day to a child who is well. The child should be taught to eat it sound—that is, without a suspicion of staleness—and not to give too much at once. Strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, pears, apples, peaches, oranges and grapes are all welcome.

Fruit having a skin should be pared, and grapes should have the seeds removed, or the child should be taught not to swallow them. Bananas must be given with caution. They disagree with many children. Try a small one day, and if it no ill effects follow two the next, proceeding slowly until certain it can be well borne.

Stewed fruit can be given at supper and is much relished by most children. Apples, pears and peaches cooked in this way are a valuable addition to the diet list, and almost any of the fresh fruits can be similarly treated.

In winter preserved apples, apricots, etc., are nearly as nice as the fresh fruit and bear little resemblance to the old fashioned, leather-like dried preparations. These may be soaked overnight before cooking and boiled until perfectly tender.

Prunes with the stones removed are a favorite dish in many nurseries.

Grossome Rites Laid To Tribes.

El Paso, Tex., May 29.—In spite of the fact that a similar charge was investigated and dismissed by a grand jury some time ago another complaint has been filed with United States District Attorney Lewellyn of New Mexico that a tribe of Indians of that territory is given to the worship of an enormous serpent, to which is fed the new-born babies of a pueblo in which it is housed and carefully tended and guarded.

The complaint was filed by a Catholic priest, who alleges that a dozen families were segregated from several pueblos around about two years ago and formed into a pueblo by themselves, that although it is known that many children have been born to these families not a child is to be found in the pueblo.

This led the priest to press his investigations, with the result that he discovered that in an adobe house, isolated and closely guarded, there is an enormous serpent, which is worshipped by the Indians of all the pueblos around, and that every babe born in the small pueblo—and, it is suspected, many others—are fed to the serpent.

Mrs. Lewellyn, having no jurisdiction, has filed the affidavit of the priest and other evidence with the territorial authorities.

Composed of Good Men.

Laktus County Herald: The next railroad commission is now made up. It is composed of McD. Ferguson, the Democratic nominee in the First district, C. C. McChord, the Democratic nominee in the Second, and A. T. Siler, the Republican nominee in the Third. The Democratic nominations in the First and Second districts are equivalent to election and the same may be said of the Republican nomination in the Third. So there are practically no contests in the three races. Mr. C. C. McChord will surely be elected as Chairman, both Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Siler being for him. It is freely predicted that Mr. George W. Landrum, one of the defeated candidates in the First district, will be appointed Rate Clerk of the Commission at a salary of $1,800 per year. Kentucky tried these men once and her citizens were well pleased with their efforts. The State did the proper thing by electing them again.

Scarcity of White Paper.

LaRue County Herald: The latest advices from paper centers are to the effect that there will be a scarcity of white paper for newspaper printing the next twelve months. Prices on print paper have advanced nearly sixty per cent. within the last twelve months and at the present prices it is almost impossible for the large city dailies to get a sufficient supply. Many of the dailies have increased their price from one to two cents per copy in consequence. While the weeklies are figuring on the condition of things to find some means of obtaining a profit out of 52 papers for one dollar. The increase in price has increased the profit on a year's subscription to a country weekly more than half within the past year, and if the increase continues, it will force them to put their prices up to $1.25 or $1.50 per year, which would be a difficult change to make and ruin the original list. It is troublesome times for the newspaper people without any hope of a betterment.

The State Normal Summer School.

The Summer School of the Western Kentucky State Normal will open June 10th, and continue eight weeks. A great Educational Chautauque and many strong Courses of Study have been provided for. I have quite a number of free scholarships that will be awarded to those persons desiring to take advantage of the Summer School. Many persons in our county should use the great educational opportunity afforded them by the State Normal Summer School, which is located at Bowling Green. Write or call on the undersigned for full information relative to free tuition. Persons desiring literature explaining the summer work should write President H. H. Cherry, Bowling Green, Ky. J. W. Ewing, Superintendent, Washington County.

At Sea in a Coffin.

A French assassin recently accepted a bed from Cayenne in a coffin. He was dressed in a suit of black, and one dark night he got into a coffin shed. He selected a fine stanch coffin, and he fastened it so well that in order to turn it into a casket, leaving a coffin sufficient to enable him to crawl in. He called all the joints as he would be could, and when this work

SILENTLY AND SLOWLY HE PROCEEDED. He finished by making a pair of paddles out of two planks. Then he brought out his craft with great precaution. Without much difficulty he reached the water.

Richly and slowly he proceeded in the hope of reaching either Venezuela or British Guiana, 150 nautical miles distant. Fortunately or unfortunately the steamer Abelle, returning from the Antilles, off Paramaribo, picked him up, half drowned and almost in a fainting condition, and a few hours later he was in iron bars in his cell.

Advice On Wrinkles.

To treat a wrinkle as it should be treated requires time. You must handle it as though it were a crinkled piece of tissue paper, and you must keep it supplied with food, and you must pamper it as you would pamper an infant. Taking it for granted that you have discovered the kind of cold cream which your skin needs, you must now take and feed this cream to the wrinkle. You must steam a wrinkle, open its pores and while they are receptive give them enough cold cream to restore them to plumpness, says the Chicago Record-Herald.

"My wrinkles have returned," wrote a lady to a beauty doctor. "I paid you a fabulous sum for taking them out of my face, and now they are back again." To this the doctor replied: "I guaranteed that I would take your wrinkles, not that I would keep them out. Wrinkles must be taken out every day. You must remove them as you remove soil from your gown or spots from your hands. Wrinkles come in a day and must be banished every night before they return, if it is twice a day."

To take out your wrinkles steam your skin. Now, steaming the face in the hands of an amateur is extremely difficult. The tendency is to use too much heat. Don't try a regular steamer. Take a pan of water and keep it warm over a flame and then apply hot cloths to the face. Keep on until your skin feels tender, but never until it is sore. Now is the time to apply cold cream, which should be very soft. The best white cream is of the consistency of the cream of milk, and it can be spread on the face very quickly. If your cream is too thick, heat it slightly and thin it with the oil of sweet almonds. It should be soft to the finger tips. Then let it cool and apply it to the skin. Never try to apply a skin lotion when it is cold. It should always be slightly heated. Set the jar in a basin of hot water, and when it is warm it will not be too hot to put on the face. And another rule: Always bathe the face with hot water first.

His Strong Point.

A little boy was on his knees recently at night and another, staying at the house, was present. "It is a pleasure," she said to him afterward, "to hear you saying your prayers so well. You speak so earnestly and seriously and mean what you say and care about it." "Ah," he answered, "but, auntie, you should hear me say 'God'!"

Nervous Worn-Out

If you are in this condition, your nerve force is weak—the power is giving out, the organs are slow, and do their work imperfectly. This failure to do the work required, clogs the system and brings distress and disease. When the nerves are weak the heart is unable to force the life-giving blood through your veins; the stomach fails to digest food; the kidneys lack power to filter impurities from the blood, and the poisonous waste remains in the system, to breed disease. Nerve energy must be restored. Dr. Miles' Nervine will do it, because it strengthens the nerves; it is a nerve medicine and tonic, that rebuilds the entire nervous system.

"Several years ago I was all broken down. I was nervous, worn-out, could not sleep and was in constant pain. I doctored for months, and finally the doctor said he could do nothing for me. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine, and I became strong and healthy. I am now a well-to-do man. I am Dr. H. C. Cunningham, 108 Elmwood Ave., Altoona, Pa. Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold by your druggist. TEDDY BEAR UP A TREE

Aspiring Animal Scares All Oyster Bay.

"EXCELSIOR" BRUIN'S MOTTO.

Bradford Weekes' Pet Seeks the Arboreal Heights; but, Unlike Longfellow's Hero, His Ambition Flags When He Smells Food, and He Comes Down.

Lacking a Sir Nigel Loring to haunt a handkerchief jauntily in the face of a great growing bear or a President Roosevelt to blow it full of holes with an express rifle at long range, the villagers of Oyster Bay first took to their heels, then gathered in force and found the brute had taken to a tree. The big reddish-brown bear is owned by Bradford Weekes and his brother Harold, who have bachelor quarters in West Main street. They kept the bear as a pet, although it is not reported to have an amiable disposition. Bruin was kept chained to a stump on the Weekes brothers' premises and was known to all the school children in the village, who often called at a safe distance.

On a recent spring day when his owners were away the bear broke the chains and made straight for a dunally tall tree that stands in front of the house. It took a short time for the whole village to learn the bear was loose, and the entire population soon seemed to be making its way to the Weekes brothers' home. The rich went in automobiles and carriages, and the poor footed it to the scene of the bear hunt. In a short time there was a big crowd gathered about the tree where the bear was perched, and all kinds of suggestions were made as to the best way to get him down.

Don Smith, who is looked upon as something of a cowboy, having once been in the far west—although details are lacking of his trip—thought he would try his hand at lassoing the bear. He got a coil of rope, and, having made a loop at one end, he whirled the coil three times around his head and then gracefully threw the loop at the bear. The rope fell about, and Dan tried it again. This time he almost succeeded in throwing the coil over the bear's head, but the brute ducked in time. Several more attempts were made by Smith, but they all failed.

While the lassoing was going on and in the interminable sticks and stones were hurled at the bear by the crowd, but the animal when hit only growled and showed his frowning teeth. This would invariably bring from the small boys in the crowd shouts of "Delightful!" "Bully for the Teddy bear!" and similar remarks.

Finally some one suggested that fire be used to scare the bear out of the tree, and this idea was at once adopted. A ladder was procured, also a long pole, to the end of which was tied a bunch of rags. The rags were saturated with kerosene oil, which was then set on fire. Don Smith took the pole and ascended the ladder to the topmost rung amid wild cheers from the natives. He poked the blazing rags at the bear, but bruin instead of coming down only growled and went higher up the tree to where the pole couldn't reach.

By this time the Weekes brothers had gone home, and one of them said he guessed he would have to shoot the bear, as it would go to leave him in the tree. He went in the house and got a rifle and on coming out aimed the weapon at the bear and seemed about to shoot. A deathlike silence fell upon the villagers, and everybody waited nervously for the crack of the rifle. It didn't come, though, for Weekes hated to shoot his pet, and he lowered his gun without firing. The suggestion that the tree be cut down as the only way of dislodging the bearhead made, but it was thought to be a pity to destroy such a fine tree, and the suggestion was not adopted.

At 9 o'clock the bear was still holding the fort, and the villagers were holding a council of war to decide on a new plan of campaign. The lot of townsmen clambered about horses or into autos and went home.

At 9 o'clock the bear solved the problem by backing down and eating up a trail of raw meat back to his den.

How to Cure Facial Neuralgia.
Here is a simple method of curing facial neuralgia, says the Cincinnati Enquirer: If the neuralgia is in the right side of the face, the left hand should be placed in a basin of water as hot as can be borne, or if neuralgia is in the left side of the face, then the right hand should be placed in the hot water. It is asserted that in this way relief may be obtained in less than five minutes. The explanation is that the two nerves which have the greatest number of tactile nerve endings are the fifth and the median nerves. As the fibers of these two nerves cross, any impulse conveyed to the left hand will affect the right side of the face, or if applied to the right hand will affect the left side of the face. This is on account of the crossing of the cords.

Death of Mrs. W. H. Gordon.

The death of Mrs. Mary E. Gordon, which occurred Tuesday, May 28, at her home near Willisburg, is the cause of genuine grief and sorrow to our entire community. At 9 o'clock Tuesday evening as the stars that deck the brow of night grew bright, the angel of death hovered near and lifted the veil of mortality and the spirit of Mrs. Gordon left its tenement of clay and was wafted to mansions on high. She had been sick but a short time and her friends had been hopeful of her recovery until a few days before her death, when she began to sink and grew steadily weaker until the divine hand that gave existence to the myriad souls of earth called her up higher to be numbered among the legions that throng the eternal throne.

All that could be done by skillful physicians, loving husband, faithful children, relatives and friends was done, but was in vain; an all-wise God saw best to call her home to eternal bliss. She was born Jan. 16, 1843, and she joined the Baptist church at Hillsboro, Ky., in her 14th year, and was married to William H. Gordon December 5, 1869. Eleven children blessed their home, ten of whom are living. Mrs. Gordon was the grandmother of a fifty-one children, forty-two living and the great grandmother of four children, all living. Her great purpose in life was to live for her children. She was a true and faithful Christian, and her life was exemplary, and expressive of all those traits that characterize a true follower of Christ. She was a devoted mother and a kind and loving wife; she was always cheerful and had a kind word for every body and scattered sunshine wherever she went. In all the vicissitudes of life she possessed a true, cheerful disposition and Christian fortitude. Although there is a vacant chair in the family circle and it can no longer hear her kind words and tender counsel, yet her beautiful life will be a living monument to her memory and the pure example, gentle acts and all her tender influences of the home will perpetuate themselves and shine throughout eternity. In all the elements constituting a woman of excellence as a wife, mother and Christian she had no superior. She was sixty-four years four months, and twenty days old.

Wednesday a long procession of sorrowing friends followed her remains to Rockbridge church, where Rev. Hatchett conducted the funeral services, after which the remains were laid to rest to await the summons on the resurrection morn. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved husband and children.

Birth Day Dinner.

One of the most enjoyable occasions that has fallen to our lot for sometime was that of the twenty-sixth of May when Mr. David Thompson celebrated the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth.

There were forty-three persons present, including children, grandchildren and many other relatives and friends. All of his children were present except his youngest son, Henry, who, with his wife, was called away on account of the serious illness of her father.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson and daughter, Virgie, and sons, Andrew and Robbie; Mr. William Fowler, wife (nee Miss Thompson) and daughters, Misses Nettie and Annie, and son, Clifton; Mr. Dee Shewmaker, wife (nee Miss Thompson) and daughter, Miss Eva, and sons, Lonnie and Virgil; Miss Gertrude Thompson and brother, Justus, daughter and son of Henry Thompson; Mrs. Parthena Thompson Ingram and Miss Jane Thompson, sisters of our host, who have also passed many milestones down the pathway of life. Miss Mary George Breckenridge, sister of Mrs. Thompson, was present, also Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Crouch, Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Crouch and daughter, Miss Ollie; Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Hungate, Mr. and Mrs. Pope Bishop and sons, Erastus, Roy and Harvey; Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Yocum and daughter, Miss Mattie; Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Bishop and little son, Heubert; Miss Dora Hardin, Harry Pinkston and Ernest Shewmaker.

One special feature was the presence of Mrs. Jane Chestnut, "Aunt Jane," as she is usually called, who is in her eighty-fifth year, and yet she is very strong and vigorous both in body and mind, her sight and hearing being slightly impaired by age. She has witnessed the passing of three wars and can relate many incidents pertaining thereto as though they were but happenings of yesterday.

Mrs. Thompson's children by a former marriage, Miss Nannie Hupp and brothers, Thomas and Leslie, contributed to all in their power, each in his sphere, to make the day one long to be remembered with pleasure by all present.

Our hostess had spared no pains in preparing a beautiful feast and to say that all fared sumptuously is but to do justice to the occasion.

Mr. Thompson was among the first to answer his country's call when civil strife shook her very foundations and threatened her with an awful destruction. He stepped out boldly saying in action that speaks stronger than words, "Here is my life; I lay it upon my country's altar, a willing sacrifice to prevent the dissolution of the Union and preserve it till the greatest nation of the earth."

Although many winters have whitened his locks Uncle Sam has not forgotten him, but is kindly rewarding him for services rendered while yet in the strength of his young manhood and this is as it should be.

May he live to see many more birthdays is the wish of the writer.

A GUEST.

VALLEY HILL.

Wheat is looking fine and the outlook is for an unusual crop. At present an abundant yield is anticipated, and yearned for by those who have to buy flour, which is an item of expense in ones panny.

Our R. F. D. Carrier reports his horse in a serious condition, after running away, having become excited at one of those infernal death-dealing automobiles that are permitted to run at large through the streets. We are in for stopping it. Have J. K. Gore for Senator and we'll stop autos if it is necessary.

The fruit crop, which was reported killed, is proving other wise in this section, while the grapes will be rather short, and apples faulty to a certain extent, we will have much more than was expected a few weeks ago. The peach crop will be somewhat short yet it is more abundant than thought for.

Farming has progressed unusually well here, for the late spring. Mary have plowed their corn and have out an average acreage of tobacco, which points fair to a successful crop year if continued.

Plans for the erection of a Union church in this section, in the near future, have been put on foot, and it is hoped with success, for a church is an honor to any district. Nevertheless we are inclined to think that it is not absolutely necessary to erect a church here at this time, as we are needing a new and more commodious school house, which can be used as a church for a while, at least, and at great saving of expense. Yet we are not against the move at all, indeed we are for anything that will advance civilization and add moral influence to our vicinity, but think it quite reasonable, from financial standpoint, that we should erect the school house just now.

It would not speak well of our section at all for passersby to see a nice new church and an old dilapidated school house, side by side, each of equal importance, and neither lacking influence upon the minds of young people if properly inspired.

We have been using our old school building for quite a while as a church, and now while we are in need of a new schoolbuilding it seems strange to mention building a church, which could not hardly be used as a school room. However if the majority of our citizens favor the erection of a church and agree to furnish the necessary expenses, I will gladly support them.

Dig Fish From Mud.

The native of certain parts of India are in the habit every year, in the summer, of digging the dry river banks for fish, which they dig out by hand, dressed, just as they would potatoes. The mud lumps are broken open, and the fish, perhaps eels, or ten inches long, will be found alive, and often, risky, as if just removed from its supposedly aquatic element, the water.

Feeling sorry you can work the life out of worry by digging in and working hard.
